Dear Steve:

We appreciate your letter of 22 July which forwarded the material relating to the Foreign Service Institute and to our meeting at [redacted]. The material you enclosed is of considerable interest to us. I share your hope that our [redacted] meeting was the beginning of a closer relationship among the U.S. Government foreign operations agencies.

We believe that it would be useful for you in your new role to become more familiar with CIA's training program, and I would hope that you could find some time after Labor Day for this purpose. What I envisage is roughly a half of a day here at the Chamber of Commerce Building in Arlington and then separately, the better part of a day to visit our remote training facility. I believe you are somewhat familiar with this latter facility since I understand you attended an Ambassadorial Seminar there prior to assuming your last post.

If you are agreeable to these briefings, perhaps you could have your secretary get in touch with [redacted] in my office to work out some suitable dates. [redacted] can be reached on [redacted]
